

January is Kansas Radon Action Month

Governor Kathleen Sebelius signed a proclamation January 5th designating January as Kansas Radon Action Month. The proclamation encourages all Kansans to test their homes, schools, and work sites for radon and take measures to reduce the risk of developing lung cancer in the future from radon.

Supporting Gov. Sebelius's proclamation to make January Radon Action Month are (l-r) Ron Hammerschmidt, KDHE Environment division director; Brian Hansen, Radon Program Coordinator; Tom Conley, KDHE Radiation and Asbestos Control Section Chief; Sharon Watson, KDHE public information director, Sue Henke, American Lung Assoc.; Kim Steves, KDHE Supervisor Environmental Radiation and Emergency Preparedness; KDHE Secretary Roderick Bremby; and Cindy Evans, Shawnee County Extension Agent.
